THE MENDON SUICIDE.

Farther Particulars of the Strange Affair.

barn to feed his horses and cattle. He took off his coat and hung it up in the barn and then went to the hay stack and discarded his shoes. The day before he borrowed from his brother a Spencer carbine and two cartridges for the purpose, he said, of killing some dogs that were in the habit of worrying his cattle. He went on to the stack, and placing the muzzle of the gun to his left breast, pulled the trigger. The ball passed through his left lung, and ranging downward, came out at the second rib, near the backbone. Beath must have been instantaneous. He was found by his sen Hyrum about thirty minute after the tatal deed was committed.

From the evidence adduced at the inquest it appears that Bird had been meditating suicide for some time pass. On making the awful discovery the buy Hyrum raised the alarm and soon relatives and triends were on the spot. The deceased was lying on his back and the gun was resting at his feet. A verdict of suicide was returned.

John P. K. Bird was a son of Charles Bird, Sr., and was about 19 years of age. He leaves a wife and eleven children, floostly grown up, to mourn his untimely end. From all that can be learned, domestic troubles appear to have been the cause of the commission of the rash act. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the quiet little settlement of Mendon, this being the first case of the kind that has occurred there.
